A CONTEMPORARY GUIDE TO WATCH MAKING

by Hermann Sievert

CONTENT:

This contemporary guide, originally published in 1938, was written for watchmakers and their apprentices at that time. However the considerable amount of 14 reprints proves that the content depicted here is still valid for anybody interested in this fascinating subject.

After a general introduction on the watch, its mechanics and wheelworks, it comprehensively describes all relevant work steps related to pendulum clocks, pocket watches and wristwatches, and further refers to electronic watches.

A special supplement contains a quiz of 289 questions and answers, and provides an introduction to technical drawings especially for watchmakers.

A charming reference source for everyone substantially interested in watch making!
