by Rudolf Jaeger

CONTENT:

There are a number of definite advantages which make gas grills becoming increasingly popular. In the US gas grills have even gained market share of 30%. Owning a gas grill is definitely more convenient, its clean and quick, no messing with briquettes, no stacking, no lighting, and no waiting around for the coals to glow. And once dinner is over, there's no ashy mess to clean up. Return the switch to off, rub a metal brush over the grate and clean-up time is over. It's about time to publish a compendium on this versatile device.

The author Rudolf Jaeger is founder and head of the BBQ Sports Club, Germany's largest Grilling community, the ultimate address for all BBQ enthusiasts. He provides a wonderful collection of inventive, easy to prepare and very tasty recipes, from starters to main and side dishes plus delicious desserts!
